

BEE-LIEVE
WE CAN EVENT
JULY 21, 2017

THANKS TO ALL
WHO ATTENDED

HONEY BEE STATIONS HOSTED BY LANCASTER
BEEKEEPERS
ASSOCIATION

CRAFTS, FOOD AND AN OUTDOOR MOVIE

TREE AND NATIVE
PLANT TALKS
THANKS FOR OUR VOLUNTEERS

Lebanon Valley Conservancy's 2017 Strategic Plan

The new 2017 Strategic Plan for The Lebanon Valley Conservancy was just approved at the August Board Meeting. The Plan includes goals to identify, protect and connect open lands and natural resources, foster public understanding and cooperation for sustainable land use, maintain a dynamic Board and staff to further our work, and promote and evolve the Heritage Trail map for tourism in our community.

POPULATION GROWTH HEIGHTENS NEED TO PROTECT THE KITTATINNY by Charles Wertz

Wherever you may stand on the politically sensitive subject of population growth, there is still little argument that more people need more land to live on and more employment growth to support their lives.

Pennsylvania is a tale of two states in this arena. Overall, Pennsylvania lost 7,000 people in a recent census. Most lost from counties west of a line running from Wayne County in the northeast to Franklin County on the Maryland border. Two thirds of the state has stagnant to less population growth. Meanwhile the southeast/southcentral counties have growing populations and the land preservation challenges that go with it.

Little Lebanon County had a population of 90,000 people in 1960. Today we are the third fastest growing county in Pennsylvania with a population pushing 140,000. So where did we put 50,000 new residents in the last 5 decades? The answer is pretty simple when you consider Lebanon City, the county seat, has been holding at a population of 25,000 for years. The answer is, they are spread out all over the county's remaining suburban and rural municipalities. A pretty good argument for the County of Lebanon to continue supporting the Agricultural Land Preservation Program and other land conservation initiatives including The Lebanon Valley Conservancy's (TLVC) efforts in the Kittatinny and Middle Creek areas.

We also know the average woman of child-bearing age in Lebanon County does not have enough children to account for this population growth. So what is happening? Lebanon County is part beneficiary and part victim of people escaping the crowded, expensive eastern megalopolis of metropolitan New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore/

Washington. In other words, Pennsylvania's population growth in the eastern part of the commonwealth is fueled by a literal translocation of the population from one part of the northeastern U.S. to another part. Immigrants to our county account for a minor part of this growth.

This brings us full circle to part of the mission of TLVC. Protecting our natural heritage for current and future generations. TLVC land protection initiatives currently in the greater Middle Creek Wildlife Conservation Area and the Kittatinny Mts. of the northern part of the Lebanon Valley seek to do just this. Help people who want to protect their land for the present and future. If you want to explore how to protect your land or donate to our land preservation efforts call TLVC now.

Spring Monitoring of Conservation Easements

In July, the Land and Resources Committee, held annual inspections of the Conservation Easement properties held by The Lebanon Valley Conservancy. Each property was walked or driven by a volunteer who ensured that the property was maintained according to the easement, no invasive species, good land management and strong riparian buffers to protect the waterways. Our landowners continue to be strong stewards of the land in the Lebanon Valley. TLVC has preserved 781 acres in the Lebanon Valley. If you are interested in preserving your land and learning more about Conservation Easements, please contact the Conservancy.

Upcoming Events for the Conservancy

Kittatinny Ridge Easement Event

Sunday, October 1st, 2017

This event is for current and future landowners interested in learning more about Conservation Easements and their impact on our region. Guest historian will share history of the Cold Spring Hotel site.

The Lebanon Valley
Conservancy
752 Willow Street, Suite E,
Lebanon, PA 17042
Phone: 717-273-6400

Email: lvconserve@lebanonvalleyconservancy.org
LIKE us on FACEBOOK
THANKS TO OUR SPONSOR: Yoga for You